

Imagine me a lion... king of all the cats,
With a big bushy mane. It's hard to top that.
My roar can make elephants, huddle up in fear,
And rhinos, chimps, and zeebra, and every kind of deer.

I used to live in Africa, way out on the plain,
I decided to live easier, moved to town to make a change.
Now I show my sharp teeth to the kids out at the zoo,
It's only for the show they say, I know just what to do.

I love the zoo and so do you, my friends are all around,
It's still so fun to roar—they can hear me in the town.
I'm lucky to be in a zoo, I get great food for free,
Amusing kids of every age—who wants to be me?
